

Middle School Expanded-Learning FEATURED OUTCOMES

HIGHLIGHTS

2,526

The total number of Richmond Public School (RPS) middle schoolers served since 2014

The total number of RPS middle-school youth in a NextUp-coordinated expanded-learning program for the 2022–2023 school year

614

Youth who participated in programs for 30 or more days saw improvement in attendance, behavior, and their math and English grades.

96%	of youth believe that attending program(s) has helped them find out what I'm good at doing and what they like to do.
93%	of youth have fun when they're in their programs.
93%	of youth believe that attending program(s) has helped them to make new friends.
82%	of youth believe that attending program(s) has helped them do better in school.

65%	of youth improved or maintained positive attendance.
80%	of youth improved or maintained positive behavior (decrease or zero behavior infractions)
96%	of youth achieved a final grade of C or above in English.
91%	of youth achieved a final grade of C or above in math.

*Data represents the RPS youth that participated in coordinated programs at one of NextUp's core model middle schools (Albert Hill, Boushall, Lucille Brown, Henderson, and River City).

“My son enjoys participating in the NextUp. I think the system is needed not only in middle school but in high school as well.” Parent feedback, 2022–2023 Parent Survey